Paul received a car from his brother as a Christmas present. When Paul came out of his office, a street boy was walking around the shining new car, 41 it. "Is this your car, sir?" he asked. Paul nodded, "My brother gave it to me for Christmas."

"Your brother gave it to you, and didn't 42 you anything? I wish..." the boy stopped. Of course Paul knew the boy wished to have a brother like that. But what the boy said surprised Paul. The boy went on, "I wish I could be a 43 like that."

Paul looked at the boy in 44, then he added, "Would you like to take a ride in my car?" "Yes, but would you mind driving to my house?", the boy said excitedly. Paul thought the boy wanted to show his 45 that he had a rich friend. But Paul was 46 again.

When Paul stopped in front of the 47, the boy got off and ran upstairs. After a little while he carried his little disabled brother downstairs and set him 48 on the step and pointed to the 49. "It was given to him by his brother for Christmas. Some day, I will give you one just like it."

That Christmas Eve, Paul learned it is more encouraged to 50 than to receive.

A

A team of scientists are carrying out a project at the University of Greenwich in London. They are trying to find ways to make food on Mars (火星) in the future. The project is called Feeding Mars. It tries to use water, fish and fish waste to grow fruit and vegetables on Mars.

It would take at least 21 months to reach Mars, learn about its surface and return to Earth. So it would be a big help if the spacemen could grow fresh food on Mars itself.

Farming on Mars, however, will be very hard. There's plenty of water that could be taken from ice just below the surface, but the land on Mars is missing the nutrients (养分) that living things need. The team say that they could solve the problem by growing plants and fish together. Fish waste can then be used to provide nutrients for plants.

"It is expected that you can grow lots of food, such as vegetables, salads, teas and medicinal plants on Mars," said Dr Benz Kotzen, who leads the project. "You can even harvest (捕获) fish for food then."

- () 51. What does the underlined word "It" in Paragraph 1 refer to (指的是)?
- A. The future. B. The project. C. The land. D. The planet.
- () 52. What makes it difficult to farm on Mars?
- A. Ice below the surface. B. Too much fish waste.
C. The missing of living things. D. The poor land condition.
- () 53. How does Dr Benz Kotzen feel about Feeding Mars?
- A. Hopeful. B. Doubtful. C. Surprised. D. Funny.

Why did Chinese people have more than one name in ancient times?

In ancient China, people's names had three parts, their family name, given name and courtesy name. Take famous poet Li Bai for example. His family name, which came from his father's name, was Li. His given name was Bai, and his courtesy name was Taibai.

People used their given names when they were among family members. But in social life, they called each other by their courtesy names to show respect. This was mostly done among people of similar age. If you were talking about yourself, or if your elders were talking about you, the given name would be used instead of the courtesy name.

Men would get their courtesy names when they turned 20. It was a symbol of adulthood (成年礼). Women would get their courtesy names after getting married.

One's courtesy name often had something to do with one's given name. For example, the name of Mencius was Meng Ke. His courtesy name was Ziyu. Both Ke and Ziyu mean "carriage (马车)". Zhuge Liang's given name was Liang, which means "bright". His courtesy name was Kongming, which means "very bright".

- () 57. How many parts are there in people's names in ancient China?
A. 3. B. 4. C. 5. D. 6.
- () 58. What does the underlined word "courtesy" in Paragraph 2 mean in Chinese?
A. 名 B. 姓氏 C. 字 D. 昵称

- () 59. Why did people call each other by their courtesy names in social life?
 A. To show their love. B. To show their good relationship.
 C. To show their kindness. D. To show their respect.
- () 60. What would be used if your elders were talking about you according to the passage?
 A. Family name. B. Nickname. C. Given name. D. Courtesy name.

D

A new policy (政策) about school education has come out. It brings some changes in students' everyday life. Let's have a look.

According to the policy, students in the primary and junior high schools should have a clear time to do their homework. They are supposed to finish their homework in a certain time.

And the homework is neither too difficult nor too much. For example, the first and second graders must finish their homework at school. They needn't do written homework at home. The third to sixth graders should finish their homework in 60 minutes. The junior high school students are expected to do their homework in 90 minutes.

Besides less homework, schools are required to provide more physical training so that students can learn basic sports skills and become healthier. For example, many schools divide the after-school time into two parts. In the first part, students have one hour of physical exercise each day. In the second part, students can take part in all kinds of interesting activities. The two parts are expected to meet the different needs of students.

There are also some rules for training schools. They are not allowed to give lessons on school subjects on weekends or holidays. Each online class should be no more than 30 minutes.

We think that these changes will promote (提升) the all-around development of students.

- () 61. How long should the third to sixth graders finish their homework?
 A. In 30 minutes. B. In one hour. C. In 90 minutes. D. In two hours.
- () 62. Which of the following students are expected to finish their homework in ninety minutes?
 A. The first-grade students. B. The third-grade students.
 C. The sixth-grade students. D. The junior high school students.
- () 63. What is required to provide by schools besides less homework?
 A. More physical training. B. More physical work.
 C. More food. D. More housework.
- () 64. According to the passage, which of the following statements (叙述) is TRUE?
 A. Each online class should be more than 30 minutes.
 B. The third to sixth graders needn't do written homework at school.
 C. Many schools divide the after-school time into three parts.
 D. The training schools aren't allowed to give lessons on school subjects on weekends or holidays.
- () 65. Which is the best title (标题) for the passage?
 A. A New School. B. New Changes in School Life.
 C. Everyday Life. D. Different Activities at School.

IX. 任务型阅读 (共5小题; 每小题2分, 满分10分)

阅读下面短文, 按要求完成66~70题。

We all know that reading books builds a bridge between our life and the unknown world. In our country, people read books at any time. They enjoy reading books even when they're on a break at the beach, or relaxing from a hike. Good reading habits lead you to a lifelong love of books. Here are some tips on how to develop good reading habits.

Choose the books which suit you. In most middle schools, teachers give students a reading list every few weeks. Most books are easy to read, like youth novels. The students themselves can also buy books which they're interested in or the best-selling books.

Reading in short periods. 15 minutes after getting to school, 15 minutes while waiting for friends, 15 minutes before going to sleep. Then you can read books for about five hours every week in total.

Talk about your reading with your family or friends. This helps you have a better understanding.

66题完成句子; 67、68题简略回答问题; 69题找出并写下全文的主题句; 70题将画线句子译成汉语。
