六、阅读理解·C D(10分)

根据短文内容。判断句子正误。

With labels (标签) such as "zero sugar, zero fat, zero calories", some diet drinks(低糖饮料) have been placed in places that are easily seen in supermarkets. But how do these drinks taste sweet without sugar?

One of China's most popular drink brands, Genki Forest, apologized (道歉) on April 10 for deceptively(欺骗地) advertising its products as having no sugar. In a statement, the fast-growing companysaid that the difference between "sugar-free" and "sucrose-free(无蔗糖)"was not well explained in the product packaging, leading to a" misunderstanding?.

Now the company has changed the words from "sugar-free" to "low sugar" on the bottles. But many internet users don't buy the apology and feel like they've been tricked into putting on weight.

In fact, there are many kinds of sugar. Sucrose is just one of them. Other kinds of sugar, such as fructose(果糖) and sugar alcohol(糖醇), are still in Genki Forest drinks. These types of sugars offer little energy, but a small amount of them can make drinks taste sweet. That's why diet drinks like Genki Forest are popular among people who want to lose weight.

However, these sweeteners(甜味剂)might make people eat more. When you eat sweet-tasting things, it sends your brain a "sweet signal", which then tells your body to prepare itself to take in energy. But since diet soft drinks have little energy, the brain will not receive what it is expecting. In this situation, you will feel hungry and start eating more food to get energy.

According to China Daily, drinking too many diet drinks might lead to getting fat and Type 2 diabetes(糖尿病).Compared with sugar-sweetened drinks, zero-calorie sweet drinks are helpful for preventing from being overweight, but compared with water, diet drinks are not that healthy.

46. As the No.1 drink brand in China, Genki Forest was sorry for deceptively advertising its products on April 10.
47. To coast its mistake, the company has changed the words from "low sugar" to "sugar-free" on the\ bottles.
48. Fructose and sugar alcohol offer little energy, but a small amount of them can make drinks taste sweet.
49. When you eat something sweet, your brain will get a ""sweet signal" which makes you take in some energy.
50. Water is considered to be healthier than diet drinks.

阅读文章并根据上下文用下面方框内的适当选项补全短文。

"What are the best ways to study at home?" Here are some of the best ideas for healthy study habits.

1.Create an area for studying:

Where you study is important. 51. You want enough room to spread out your books and notes. A table or desk works well. Be comfortable...but not too comfortable. Do not study on your bed, for example. You might fall asleep!

2. 52.:

Some people study better in silence. Others like to have a little noise, like soft music playing. Go with whatever helps you pay attention.

3.Cut out the distractions(干扰)—and the social media(社交媒体):

Give yourself a break from social media. Put your phone away. 53. All these things pull you away from what you are trying to learn. Tell the people you live with that you are studying and need time alone to work.

4.Take breaks:

Treat yourself after reading something, working through a math problem, or completing some other tasks you set out to do. Get up, step away from your work and move your body. 54.

5.Eat so-called "brain foods" that are good for you:

Foods like nuts, yogurt and fish help your mind stay strong. Sugar may be delicious—especially chocolate, but too much sugar will give you an energy "crash(崩溃)". And, don't forget to drink plenty of water.

One more thing: 55. Avoid bad thoughts like, "I'll never be ready for this test." Instead, tell yourself what you can do: "I can understand and remember this material!"

A. Go outside for a few minutes and get some fresh air.

B. Cut out the noise.

C. When you study, think good thoughts!

D. It should be quiet, with good light to read by.

E. And turn off the television.

Molly Jackson was a high school girl from Australia. Molly loved cars very much and she decided to buy one for herself before graduation. In order to get enough money, she looked for part-time jobs on her school board and on the website.

Among kinds of part-time jobs, the one which interested her most was to be the mascot (吉祥物) of her school sports teams. It was paying $15 an hour, which was really a lot for a high school student. So Molly went to the job interview. The interviewer asked Molly why she wanted to get the job and why she thought she had the ability to do it well.

Molly said that she loved her school very much and wanted to get more students excited about the school's sports teams.

Molly got the job at last! She felt very happy. Her first day of work was at a basketball game. She got to school early that day. When she got to the basketball field, it was just 7 o'clock, only the basketball players were there. Molly put on her costume and her bear head. It was very heavy and hot inside. She kept thinking about how she wanted a car to make herself feel better.

That day, Molly's high school basketball team won the game. The crowd got up from their seats and cheered. A lot of people wanted to take a picture with Molly. She spent an hour just taking pictures. By the time Molly could go home, it was already 11 o'clock, and she felt very tired but happy. She thought about how much money she made. It was the thing keeping her going.

68. 【答案】Dear Tony,
- I'm very glad to receive your letter. In your letter, you asked me to tell you something about our government's "Double
- Reduction Policy".
- First of all, what is "Double Reduction"? "Double Reduction" means to reduce the heavy homework burden and
- after-school training burden of students.
- Secondly, why does our government try to reduce these two kinds of burden? On one hand, because of too much
- homework, it leads to students' falling levels of physical health and more mental health problems. On the other hand,
- because of too many after-school classes, many families have to pay huge family costs.
- In my opinion, I'm very pleased with it. With the policy successfully carried out, I will enjoy a happier life.
- Yours,
- Li Hua
