Two cats were walking through a forest. Suddenly, they found a piece of bread lying under a tree. They caught the piece at the same time. Neither would give up and so they decided to divide it into two pieces and take one piece each. "But how do we divide it?" one cat said.

A monkey sitting on a tree saw what had happened. He got an idea. He came down from the tree and walked up to the confused cats. The cats thought the monkey was clever and asked him to help them divide the bread. The monkey agreed.

The monkey broke the bread into two pieces. But one piece was a little bigger than the other. "Oh no! I will take a little bite (咬一口) of this bigger piece to make both equal," the monkey said. He took a bite from the bigger piece. But the bite he took was too big. "Uh oh! Now it has become smaller than the other piece. I will just have to take a little bite from this piece now," the monkey said.

The monkey took another bite. The two cats sat in front of the monkey, seeing the piece of bread get smaller and smaller. When the whole piece was finally gone, the monkey said, "I am sorry. It was really difficult to divide that piece. I must be going now." He jumped back into his tree and was gone.

"If we stayed united (团结) and didn't fight against each other, we would eat or keep our bread," the two cats said sadly and regretfully.

51. What did the cats decide to do after finding the piece?

- A. To throw it away directly. B. To break it into two equal pieces.
C. To find another piece of bread. D. To find someone to divide it in two.

52. How did the two cats feel after seeing that the piece was gone?

- A. Excited. B. Proud. C. Regretful. D. Thankful.

53. What lesson might the cats learn from this experience?

- A. It is important to stay united. B. They should go find more bread.
C. The monkey was very helpful. D. It is hard to divide things equally.

Once there was a milkman named Deenu. He had built his house far away from his village in the woods. He preferred the quietness of the woods to the noisy village.

Deenu was an honest man. He treated every person fairly, but sometimes he got cheated. He thought the world was full of bad spirits.

One evening, Deenu was returning home after selling milk in the village. He saw an old man sitting under a tree thinking hard, so he walked up quietly.

"Can I help you?" the man asked with his eyes closed.

"Yes, I want to know how to change the world. Everything in nature is so beautiful, but there are so many bad people who only care about themselves. What can I do?" Deenu said.

The man smiled and said, "I can see that you are a responsible man. Answer a few questions first. Did you smile at all the customers who came to buy your milk today?"

"Sometimes, but not all," Deenu replied.

"When you smiled, did they smile back?" the man asked.

"Yes, they were very nice people."

"For those people you don't like, did you show them a smile first?"

“Not really—why should I?” Deenu asked.

“What if you gave them a smile as well?”

“Well, they... they might smile back,” Deenu said.

“That’s it. If you really want to do something for the world, you can start with yourself. You can’t determine how other people think or act, but you can decide what you do,” the old man said patiently.

This made sense to Deenu. He thanked the man and walked home. He changed the way in which he saw the world.

54. About the milkman, which of the following is right?

- A. He built a big house in the village. B. He loved the quietness of the village.
C. He didn’t have a job and hung out all day. D. He thought the world was not so pleasant.

55. What happened to the milkman that day?

- A. He didn’t see anybody smile at him. B. He smiled at everybody he met.
C. He was cheated by some bad people. D. He didn’t smile at those he disliked.

56. What was the old man’s suggestion?

- A. Stay away from the bad men. B. Being a responsible man is not hard.
C. Changing the world starts with oneself. D. Caring less about others will make you happy.

As we all know, pandas are such lovely animals that we can’t help loving them when we see them even for the first time. Now we need some volunteers to help look after pandas, come and know about the brochure (宣传册).

Volunteer with Giant Pandas in Chengdu

• Where Can You Volunteer to work with pandas?

There are three panda bases offering volunteer programs:
Dujiangyan Panda Base, Wolong Panda Center and Bifengxia Panda Base.

For day-long volunteer experiences, we recommend you go to Dujiangyan Panda Base as it is easy to reach there.

For a longer program, Wolong Panda Center is the best place to go. Bifengxia can be a good option if you want to attend a less busy program and don’t mind having a longer drive.

For different kinds of experiences, we highly recommend Wolong, the real hometown of wild pandas. There, you can choose to experience lots of activities.

• What volunteer activities are included?

- Cleaning and carrying fresh bamboo
- Making cakes for pandas
- Feeding the pandas (usually through the cage bars, for safety reasons)
- Cleaning the place that the pandas live in
- Collecting and weighing the pandas’ feces (排泄物)
- Taking a tour around the panda base
- Learning about giant pandas and how to conduct panda behavior research
- Watching documentary movies about giant pandas

Like most people I know, I love watching television. When I was little, I would always look forward to watching a children's programme on TV when I arrived home from school. These days, when I am at home, I enjoy turning on the television in the evening after a busy day to watch a crime drama or chat show. Although I normally watch television to relax and I often feel guilty about watching television too much, TV series are an excellent resource for any ambitious language learner.

When you are learning a language, it is a great idea to choose a foreign language series to watch. The series can belong to any kind: thriller, drama, comedy or even reality television, whatever makes you interested. Watching this series is a good way to improve your listening skills because the characters or presenters will talk at a normal speed and will use authentic language. It is also a useful way to practice your spoken English, which cannot be found in a textbook but is used regularly in real life.

If you are a beginner, it can be a good idea to start by watching the programme with subtitles (字幕) in your native language. However, as you become more confident, you can watch a series with foreign language subtitles or even with no subtitles at all. Remember that the aim is not to understand every single word! You just need to be able to understand the overall storyline and you can often work out the meaning of unfamiliar words and phrases from the context. It can be difficult at first, but it is really important to keep going!

Sometimes, while watching the programme, I noted down any unfamiliar vocabulary before checking it in a dictionary. However, at other times, I put my pen down, relaxed and enjoyed the show. My listening skills have definitely improved and my vocabulary has widened.

So, there you have it: an excuse to watch television!

61. If your English is poor, you'd better _____.
 A. try to improve your listening skills first
 B. watch more programmes with no subtitles
 C. choose thriller, drama, comedy and reality television to watch
 D. watch English programmes with your native language subtitles
62. Which of the following can replace the underlined word "authentic" in Paragraph 2?
 A. Standard. B. Special. C. Meaningful. D. Unusual.
63. What is the writer's attitude to watching television to learn English?
 A. He is doubtful about it. B. He encourages us to do it this way.
 C. His attitude is unclear. D. He hates to learn English this way.

64. What can we learn from the passage?

- A. As a student, the writer liked watching crime dramas on TV.
- B. It is very easy to watch programmes with no subtitles at first.
- C. These days, the writer doesn't like watching chat shows at all.
- D. If the writer watches television too much, he often feels guilty.

65. What is the text mainly about?

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|--|
| A. The way to learn a language. | B. A skill in improving vocabulary. |
| C. An excuse to watch television. | D. The benefit of watching television. |

IX. 任务型阅读（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 10 分）

阅读下面短文，按要求完成 66~70 题。

Do you hear something? It may be a very soft sound when someone is whispering to you. Or it may be a loud sound when someone is shouting to you. Or it may be the sound of an airplane. Or it may be the sound of music... In a word, sounds are all around you. Your ears collect the sounds. Then the sound signals go to your brain. Your ears are amazing!

Ears are a kind of body parts and they are important. They can not only help you hear sound, but also help you keep balance. If you lose hearing, you will fall down easily.

You must take good care of your ears. You should protect your hearing. If you use earbuds (耳塞式耳机) to listen to music, don't turn up the volume too loud. The louder the sound is, the more quickly it can damage your hearing. If the person next to you can hear your music, it is too loud. Follow the 60:60 rule. Don't turn up the volume higher than 60 percent of the loudest volume. You can play music at the proper volume for 60 minutes a day.

If your hearing disappears, you can't get it back. Can you imagine what your world will be like without hearing? That must be very terrible!
