Say "Yes" to Life

My mom sometimes told some interesting stories about me that happened in my childhood. She once told me that after I learned to say "Mama" and "Dada", my third 16 was "No!". Then it is a sad thing that I used that word too often as a boy. I always did what I wanted 17. I didn't want to eat any vegetables. I didn't want to go to bed on time 18. I was tired of playing. I didn't want to work in the 19. Because I felt too tired to raise flowers. I would rather 20 books than help my mom and grandma with the housework. In other words, I was a bit of a brat (顽童). I have two elder brothers. Being the 21 of three sons, I probably said "no" a lot more than I should have.

As I 22, I began to say "yes!" a lot more. I can remember sweeping the floor and 23 the window. I felt really 24 to help my mother and father. I can remember studying hard to get good 25 in school. I can remember the pride in my parents' eyes when I got into college. I can remember learning 26 saying "yes" could bring more joy into my life than saying "no" ever did.

Even now, I am still 27 how to say "yes". My only advice to 28 is not to wait as long as I did. Say "yes" to life. Remember to say "yes" to love. Say "yes" to help others and 29 this world a better place. "Yes" may only be a word, 30 it can change your life. From now on, try to say "yes"!

Can you think of a day without music? We can hear music everywhere: in the streets and at home, over the radio and on TV, in the shops and in the parks. People all over the world like music. They listen to music, they dance to music, and they learn to play musical instruments.

Music isn't only a combination (结合体) of pleasant sounds. It is an art which reflects (反映) life. There are a lot of different kinds of music. Some of them appeared long ago, and some are modern. Folk music appeared long ago, but it is still alive. Folk songs are very pleasant to listen to. Classical music is often associated with the music of the past. Rap is a modern musical style where the singer speaks or shouts the words in time to music with a steady beat.

Britain has produced popular music stars more than any other country. British groups often set new trends in music. New styles, groups and singers continue to appear. Many of the new bands have been able to use changes in technology to develop their music, such as computerized drum machines and other electronic instruments.

People's musical interests differ from pop and rock music to classical music and opera. My favourite style music is pop music because it is full of energy. When I listen to pop music, it makes me remember happy times. The music I hate is heavy metal. I find it noisy. When I listen to classical music, it presents to my mind pictures of dark days.

Music attracts our hearts. Music is beauty in sounds; it is our magic of inspiration.

I've been writing detective stories since I was a teenager. Some people think it's a strange job for a woman, but I think crime fiction is for everyone. I've started giving writing classes and the most common question people ask is, "Where do you start?" It's impossible to give fixed rules, but there are some general tips that people often find useful.

●Before you start writing, choose a time period and place that sound realistic. A useful tip is to write about what you know. If you were born in Paris or London, it might make sense to set your story in a European country. Of course, you can write about any century, but you'll have to do a lot more research to make your story believable.

●The character of your detective is very important. He or she must have qualities that help them solve the crime, but they also need characteristics that make them an individual(个人). He or she must also fit in the time and place of your story. Readers are very knowledgeable, and they will notice if you get any details wrong about the time period.

●Every detective story needs a crime, of course. You need to explain what happens before the crime, the crime itself and what happens next. Remember that you don't always have to write about a murder. Some readers don't enjoy stories filled with guns and blood. So, why not write about a theft, kidnapping, or something different like an environmental crime?

●Clues are important to keep the readers' interest. They must be interesting, but not too difficult or repetitive(重复的). The readers also need to know who the suspects are and whether they can prove that they were somewhere else when a crime was committed. Readers love a "twist" at the end of the story—a surprise or a new fact that brings the action to its conclusion.

37. The writer of the passage is _____.

- A. a detective
- B. a woman
- C. a teenager
- D. a reader

38. What can we know from the passage?
- A. You won't have to do so much research if you write about any century.
B. The readers know whether the writer makes a mistake about the time period.
C. The clues in the detective story must be interesting, difficult or repetitive.
D. The readers enjoy stories like a murder because they are filled with guns and blood.
39. What does the underlined word "twist" in the last paragraph mean?
- A. 重复 B. 结论 C. 转折 D. 冲突
40. Why did the writer write this passage?
- A. To keep the readers' interest. B. To tell a real detective story.
C. To describe the life of a story writer. D. To give advice on writing a detective story.

Uncle Tom sang a song about angels and Heaven with Eva in the garden.

"Uncle Tom, sometimes I see those spirits," said Eva. "They come to me in my sleep. I'm going there." Eva pointed her finger to the sky and said, "To the bright spirits."

Uncle Tom's heart almost stopped. He looked at Eva. She didn't look well: she was often tired, her breath was short, she had a cough, and she was getting very thin.

Miss Ophelia noticed this too, and she tried to tell Eva's father, St Clare.

"Stop that!" St Clare said. "Don't you see that the child is only growing up? It's what happens to children of her age."

"But she has that cough!"

"That's nothing. Maybe she has a little cold," St Clare said.

Eva's health got even worse. She became very weak and she could hardly leave the house, so St Clare sent her to the hospital.

In a week or two, it seemed that Eva's health improved greatly. St Clare was happy and he was sure Eva would get better. But Miss Ophelia was not so sure, and neither was Eva herself. One afternoon, when St Clare called Eva to give her a present, "Papa, I am going to leave you soon," said Eva, and she started crying.

"Oh, my dear!" said St Clare, "you're just tired and a little weak because of the illness. You will be perfectly fine soon."

"No, Papa," said Eva, "I won't get better. I am not sad. I'm sorry for you, Papa, and my friends, but I want to go!"

"Why do you want to go? Are you unhappy, Eva?"

"Oh, I feel sad for our slaves (奴隶): they are all good and kind to me. I wish, Papa, they were all free."

"Don't you think we treat them well?" said St Clare.

"But what will happen to them if anything happens to you? There are very few men like you, Papa. Some people buy the husbands but not the wives, some people buy the mothers and sell the children. What terrible things people do! Papa, isn't there any way to make all slaves free?"

"Slavery is a very bad thing, but I don't know what to do about it," said St Clare. "Promise me that Uncle Tom will be free as soon as I'm asleep," said Eva.
