I came to a new school. Like me, a girl named Amy was also new to the class. Except this, we had nothing in common. I was 41, but she was short. My hair was short and ugly, while hers was long and beautiful. I was shy, but she was not. I considered her my 42. But she wanted to be my friend.

One day, she invited me to her house. I was 43 because I never thought my "enemy" would invite me to play. In fact, I had never been invited to play before, so I had no reason to 44.

I came to her house. When we got to her room, she took out a large box of dolls. Then we sat on the floor and 45 crazy stories about these dolls. We both had a wild imagination. Also on that day, I discovered we had the same 46 — writing. And we both dreamed of being writers.

Amy was a very 47 girl, and she could get on well with everyone. She was welcomed by all the neighbors in her community. Soon I was 48 in her magical world. I met her friends and got to know her neighbors. We went to each other's houses to play and spent every spare moment 49.

Amy, my first real friend since childhood, taught me an amazing thing about making friends: your "worst enemy" may 50 your best friend.

At New Visions School, hip-hop therapy (嘻哈疗法) has become part of the school culture. Students rap (表演说唱) about being stressed about grades, tests, relationships, etc. Taliesha Tliompson, 15 years old, said she now raps whenever she feels pressure building inside her. "It has opened me up more," she said. "I was very shy and quiet. I kept everything to myself."

Hip-hop therapy grew out of an after-school club. The club was started by Ian P. Levy, a teacher who was developing a model for hip-hop therapy as part of his research. Mr. Levy's students recorded 20 songs expressing their feelings. "When sad events happen, it's important that students have a way to express themselves," Mr. Levy said.

This school year, Mr. Levy also started a music class at the school, called Hip-Hop Lyricism. It is popular among students.

Stacey King, the school principal, said hip hop helped her connect with students like Ishmel Prince. Ishmel used to miss school two to three times a week because he could not get up. Ms. King bought him an alarm clock, but he still did not show up. But that changed after Mr. Levy and 19 students were invited to rap live on a morning talk show on SiriusXM Radio. Ishmel made an agreement with Ms. King. He promised to come to school on time every day in return for being allowed to go to the show. Ishmel kept his word. He studies hard now and has better relationships with others.

"Hip-hop therapy is great. It has the power to reach out to people and speak to certain people. It has helped me find out who I am," said Ishmel.

56. When Taliesha has stress, what does she do now?
- A. She raps it out. B. She goes to a club.
C. She keeps it to herself. D. She talks to her teacher.
57. What do we know from Paragraph 2?
- A. Students' stresses. B. Mr. Levy's research results.
C. How hip-hop therapy was born. D. What students think of hip-hop therapy.
58. What does the underlined word "principal" mean in Paragraph 4?
- A. Musician. B. Headmaster. C. Singer. D. Doctor.
59. What promise did Ishmel make to Ms. King?
- A. He would study hard. B. He would use the alarm clock.
C. He would arrive at school on time every day.
D. He would go to the talk show on SiriusXM Radio.
60. What is the passage mainly about?
- A. Encourage readers to learn hip-hop. B. Describe the development of hip-hop.
C. Show how to get on with others at school. D. Introduce a popular therapy at a school.

六、读写综合(本大题分为A、B两部分,共25分)

A. 回答问题(本题共5小题,每小题2分,共10分)

Our words carry huge weight. They may influence other people for years, and even for a lifetime. They provide them with courage to go on or one more reason to give up.

When I was fourteen, my family moved to another city. Junior high was always difficult for me, and the move made my ninth-grade year even harder. I remember walking into the dining hall for the first time. The other kids had good friends with them, but I didn't know anyone. I felt lonely and went to the nearest seat after getting some food. The kids beside me looked at me up and down and then laughed. I could feel my face turning red at that moment.

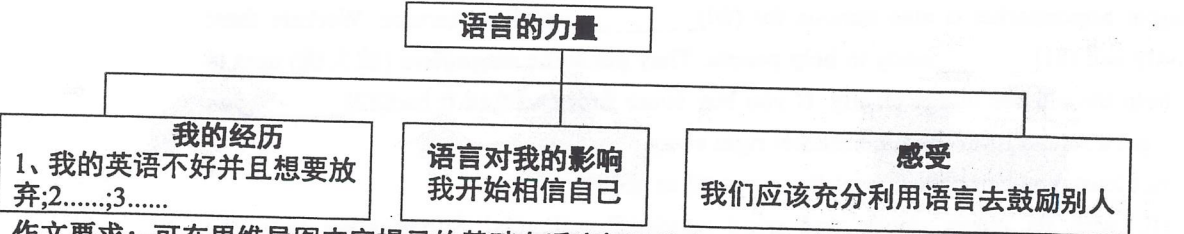

Then one of the kids broke the ice, "Man! You have one BIG nose!" I felt hurt and didn't know what to say. I wanted to cry. But I managed a little smile-as if it didn't hurt me at all. But it did. From then on, I would often look at myself in the mirror. I studied the big nose closely. It seemed that I was just living for my nose. Thankfully, I got away from this influence finally. But it really took me twenty years.

There is another thing that is kept deep in my mind. I remember going through a terrible business failure. I lost everything. I called my dad for help and he told me a lot about how to deal with the failure. What he said gave me a lot of courage and confidence to go on with my business.

76. What may influence other people for a long time according to the passage?
77. How did the writer feel when entering the dining hall for the first time?
78. Why did other kids laugh at the writer?
79. How long did it take the writer to get away from the influence?
80. Who gave the writer courage and confidence, his dad or his mother?

B. 书面表达(本题15分)

81. 常言道“良言一句三冬暖,恶语伤人六月寒。”假设你是李华,你将要参加学校举办的英文演讲比赛,题目是“语言的力量”,请你根据以下思维导图内容提示用英文写一篇演讲稿,分享自己的经历和感受。

作文要求:可在思维导图内容提示的基础上适当拓展信息。不能照抄原文,不得在作文中出现真实校名和学生的真实姓名。词数80个左右。作文的开头和结尾已经给出,不计入总词数。

Ladies and gentlemen,

How will words influence others? Let me tell you one of my experiences.
